The Big Widstok Comes to Cambusbarron

It may not be upstate New York, but organisers hope something of the spirit of '69 will be in evidence in Cambusbarron Public Park this Saturday when the Big Widstok, Mini-Music Festival comes to Cambusbarron. The latest venture from the Save Gillies Hill group – the trees on the Hill have always been 'The Wids' for generations of village folk – sees local stars Ted Christopher, the GilliesHillbillies and Domino Effect giving their services for free in support of the cause.

Said committee-man Davey McFarlane: "This is a chance for supporters to have a temporary breather from campaigning, to enjoy some outdoor music, and for some low-key fund-raising."

(Admission is free, but donations will be gratefully received.)

And after the 'official' musicians have strutted their stuff, the final hour will be an 'open mike' session.

Besides the music, there will be childrens' activities, a barbecue, and a beer tent.

A Save Gillies Hill spokesperson said: " We're looking forward to a day like the fabulous Gala we had this year - with music added. After all, the venue's often called the Swing Park".

The fun all kicks off at 2pm. It should be a great day.
